Forms - Justice The Ministry of Justice (MoJ) is to allow the Court of Appeal as well as the Supreme Court to depart from European Union case law from next year, despite the opposition of a majority of respondents to a consultation. There were strong objections from the likes of the Law Society and Bar Council, but ...

Court of Appeal to have power to depart from EU law ... The Court of Appeal has urged the Civil Procedure Rule Committee to consider preventing defendants setting off costs in cases covered by qualified one-way costs shifting (QOCS). The court ruled last week that it was bound by a 2017 decision to allow a set-off, even though Lord Justice Males said there was “powerful case” for saying it was wrongly decided.
