Ship construction today is a complicated compound of art and science. In the great days of sail, vessels were designed and built on the basis of practical experience; ship construction was predominantly a skill. With the rapid growth and development of the physical sciences, beginning in the early 19th century, it was inevitable that hydrokinetics (the study of fluids in motion), hydrostatics ...

Construction and Technology. Arguably the biggest external factor influencing the construction industry is the world's rising population. A recent World Economic Forum publication on the future of construction reported that the population of the world's urban areas is increasing by 200 000 people per day. The world's urban population is forecast to grow from the rough current figure of ...

Our central idea is the construction of situations, that is to say, the concrete construction of momentary ambiances of life and their transformation into a superior passional quality. We must develop a systematic intervention based on the complex factors of two components in perpetual interaction: the material environment of life and the behaviors which that environment gives rise to and ...
