My Kel-Tec P-40/357 SIG Pistol. This is a lightly used Kel-Tec P-40 that I found in a pawn shop. I purchased an after-market 357 SIG barrel for it. The P-11 (9mm) magazines, and the P-40 (40 S and W magazines) all work with either 40SW or 357SIG caliber. I prefer the 357SIG set up, as the gun is more accurate in that caliber, and the feeding of ...

The Kel-Tec Pistol is the small- est and lightest service caliber ever made. Thanks to its locking dynamics and superior ergonometry, perceived recoil and practical accuracy are comparable to much larger guns. The pistol is especially suited for plainclothes police officers or as a secondary weapon for military personnel.

When the P-40 GUN came out it had mags labeled P-40 but they were really in the configuration of the P-11 9mm mag in the lip area. Again the nose jam into the feed ramp problems were common with these P-40 mags and continued with S&W 6906 and 5906 9mm mags. 3. It was eventually recognized by Kel-Tec that the 40 S&W round was not coming up out of the mag soon enough to give a good feed into the chamber, thus causing the round to jam into the feed ramp.
