Flipping is a term used primarily in the United States to describe purchasing a revenue-generating asset and quickly reselling it for profit. Though flipping can apply to any asset, the term is most often applied to real estate and initial public offerings. The term "house flipping" is used by real estate investors to describe the process of buying, rehabbing, and selling properties for profit. In 2017, 207,088 houses or condos were flipped in the U.S., which is an 11 year high. In the United Ki

As a wholesale strategy, flipping real estate contracts serves as a way for investors to act as the intermediary between sellers and end buyers. However, instead of acquiring the subject property, the investor flipping the contract (the wholesaler) will simply enter into an agreement with the original owner; one that gives them the rights to buy the property at a later date.
