that state building and nation building can be sep-arated only conceptually but that both processes have gone and are going hand in hand. I would say, however, that in the historical reality of societies these have been and are distinct processes. First of all, state building started with the crisis of feudalism, the Renaissance and the Reformation.

Nation-building is constructing or structuring a national identity using the power of the state. Nation-building aims at the unification of the people within the state so that it remains politically stable and viable in the long run. According to Harris Mylonas, "Legitimate authority in modern national states is connected to popular rule, to majorities. Nation-building is the process through which these majorities are constructed." Nation builders are those members of a state who take the initia

Abstract. This essay discusses, from a historical and contemporary perspective, the processes of state and nation building. The difficulties of making every nation a state and every state a nation, and the fact that people live intermingled within the borders of states and have different and often dual identity leads to arguments for multi-national states, states which abandon the dream of becoming nation states and 'nations' willing to live in a multi-national democratic liberal state.
