The etymology and origin of the terms Phoenicia and Phoenicians have been widely discussed. There is a large consensus among scholars today that Phoenicia derives from the Greek term Phoenix, from the root phoinos, meaning "red." This word can refer to different things (Bonnet and Lipínski 1992, 353): to the purple color, to the red-winged bird, to the palm tree, to a sort of cithara, and to red-faced people; also it "was regularly used by the Greeks to describe people from the Levant ...
