Storyline. "The Mystery of the Riverboat" while ending each chapter with a cliffhanger is more episodic in nature than the usual Universal serial and somewhat similar to Universal's 1934 "Tailspin Tommy" in that aspect as some plot lines are completed as a story within the overall story. Plus, while some serials often contained a title song or motif throughout, this one has six songs scattered around and about performed by either Marion Martin - and we have no idea if she favorite. Beginning the book is like returning to an old friend, although there is no requirement that you read the first two books in the series to enjoy this one.

The Riverboat Mystery (Jenny Starling, #3) by Joyce Cato
Though directed by Universal's standard war-era duo of Ray Taylor and Lewis Collins, Mystery of the Riverboat features another, more unexpected name in its credits; it's one of the handful of post-1942 Universal chapterplays overseen by the studio's veteran serial producer Henry MacRae (who died just before its release), instead of by Morgan Cox (the man responsible for most of the studio's later serials).
