Plume & Atwood Manufacturing Company (1853) The oldest parts of the Plume & Atwood Manufacturing Company ' s factory in Thomaston date to 1853. In that year, clockmaker Seth Thomas, who was unhappy buying brass for his clocks from companies in Waterbury, built his own brass mill on the Naugatuck River. In 1869 a new company was organized, Holmes, Booth & Atwood, which purchased the factory with the agreement that they would continue to supply brass for Seth Thomas clocks.

It is clear from the trade card as well as the burner shown here that The Plume & Atwood Manufacturing Company manufactured lamp burners incorporating the Hyde patent. This lip burner is marked on the inner thumbwheel PATENTED JAN. 7, 1879 (Hyde's patent) and on the outer thumbwheel PAT. JAN. 16.83 & FEB. 11.73, both Lewis J. Atwood's patents assigned to Plume & Atwood.
