Stretching from Blanes, 60km north of Barcelona, to the French border, the unfairly maligned Costa Brava (Rugged Coast) boasts wooded coves, high cliffs, pretty beaches and deep blue water. Struggling under its image as the first developed package-tour coast in Spain, it is very determinedly shifting away from mass tourism.

Although Costa Rica lies between eight and eleven degrees north of the equator, the weather is governed by the vastly varying altitudes. Temperatures are by no means universally high and can plummet to below freezing at higher altitudes. While planning when to go to Costa Rica, bear in mind local microclimates predominate.
